Our Association

LIVE ART AS AN “ART DE VIVRE”

Since 1986, we have developed our expertise in a very special field: cultural tourism.

Our initial ambition is to live art as an « art de vivre », to lead participants by their hand on our trips and tell them a story: the story of a place, its population, its architecture and its culture in the broadest sense.

Our team of professionals works on demand, adapting and creating tours and tailor-made programs.

Cultural tourism, special events and incentives, marketing and communication to be integrated in your seminar or congress: from the guided tour to your cultural event, Itinéraires answers promptly in (almost) every language. Each proposal is adaptable to your wishes and the reality of your timing and objective.

Itinerary of the Historical Heart

We invite you to share a special cultural itinerary, as we immerse you in the discovery of the "must-sees" in the beating heart of our capital.

The Grand Place, a Unesco World Heritage site described by Cocteau as "the richest theater in the world", the Galeries Royales Saint-Hubert and their period technical prowess will plunge you into a veritable Brussels Kaleidoscope.

Itinerary of the Comic Strip

Comic book frescoes, street-art works, "revisited" street signs: the heart of Brussels is full of interaction between a type of artistic expression and an urban site; a stroll that will seduce young and old alike by its dive into the fantastic world of comic books, as well as into the colors and messages, hidden in plain sight, of street artists. Whether you are a comic book fan or a traveler in fantasy, this tour will bring you what you are looking for in your dreams and your departures: a taste of elsewhere...

The Noble Quarter of Sablon

After the Dukes of Burgundy settled in Brussels, the nobility of Brabant, and later of the various provinces of the Burgundian Netherlands, gradually established their urban residences near the ducal palace. This was at the expense of the former Jewish quarter and part of the working-class Putterie district. At the end of the Middle Ages, when the marriage of Maximilian of Habsburg to the last descendant of the Dukes of Burgundy made Brussels one of the main centers of imperial power, many European noble families converged here. The expansion of the city's walls led to the creation of a new noble district: the Sablon.

This is not a realistic Itinerary

Magritte, Delvaux and others, when surrealism took root in Brussels

"To be or not to be, that is the question"... What did Magritte mean when he inscribed on his canvas "ceci n'est pas une pipe"? To help you understand Belgian surrealism, we'll take a look at the places frequented, invested in and represented by our artistic authors. We can also proudly tell you why our capital is considered surreal!

Art Nouveau and Art Déco in the City Center

The city centre leads us to the sumptuous Waucquez and Wolfers brothers' shops. Now respectfully the Belgian Comic Strip Centre and a toy shop, they are the only remaining shops left from the time of their construction. Horta was a fertile artist who always sought innovation and renewal. After the First World War and his trip to America, Horta gave himself over to a more stripped-down and geomandric style, Art Décoratif. The most representative example of this period is the façade of the Bozar. And yes, it is a façade by Horta. Even more surprisingly, it was he who designed the well-known Central Station in our beloved Brussels.

Art Nouveau in Ixelles and Saint-Gilles

In the 19th century, Belgium's reputation made Brussels a sumptuous meandering place. At the forefront of the metallurgical industry, the leading producer of cars, and in demand from all over the world for railway construction, the country attracted the great and the good of the world. At the invitation of Ernest Solvay - one of our brilliant captains of industry - the Nobel Prize winners (including Einstein) mand, for example, at the Hotel Métropole. The best example of this dynamism is the birth of Art Nouveau thanks to the brilliant architect Victor Horta.

The Ketjes of Brussels

This stroll through the sometimes-little-known streets of Brussels takes us from the grandiose Palais de Justice to the colorful streets of the Marolles, echoing the echoes of a tumultuous past. Poelaert and his Palais de Justice, which he failed to complete before his death, the Minimes and the church of the same name, the Samaritaine district, often in revolt, the plaque commemorating Vesalius and "his" hanged men, the Breughel district, the houses and schools built by Horta, the Phalansterian city of Reine Astrid, the Chapelle church... A district too often neglected; it nevertheless contains the beating heart of Brussels' history.
